Investigation Set For Exec Council

AN INVESTIGATION into conducted to "determine lines ...ssible inadequacies and shortcomings of the Brigham Young ...iversity Executive Council ...stem has been launched.

A committee consisting of ...rk Hart, Boise, Ida., and Gilbert Fairbolm and Dwayne ...ovenson, both of Salt Lake ...ty, were chosen to conduct the investigation, according to ...onroe McKay, studentbody president.

Committee members are students in Dr. Stewart Grow's ...blic Administration class.

INVESTIGATION is being ...of authority." according to Dennis Olsen, Senate president. The BYU Senate is participating in sponsorship of the probe.

Recommendations will be made for revision of Executive Council organization to produce a more streamlined and modern governing body.

These recommendations are expected to be considered during discussion on a new studentbody constitution by the Senate.

Results of the survey are expected to be released early in December

Live For Your Faith' Leader ...ells Devotional Audience

by Sally Arnold
Daily Universe Campus Editor

"LIVE FOR YOUR faith," was ...e message delivered by Elder ...ark E. Petersen, of the Council of Twelve Apostles of the ...hurch of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to a record ...owd at the Tuesday morning ...eekend assembly.

More than 5,000 students ...owded into the Smith Fieldhouse to hear Elder Peterson ...ell them "it is no easy something to die for your faith, but ...hard at times to live the principles for which we stand."

"We need devotion, loyalty, ...d willingness to stand by our ...eins," he added, "then if called ...pon, willingness to die."

THE CHURCH leader explained he was sent by the presidency of the LDS church to ...ll on the youth of Israel to live ...r their faith. He reviewed the ...eat President's present program for the young people of the ...hurch whereby posters and inspirational messages are to be ...splayed in every LDS ward ...d branch meeting place in ...merica

The posters change every ...onth but all carry the subject, "Be Honest With Yourself." First three posters were displayed before the assembly. Their captions were: "Virtue Is Its Own Reward", "Healthy Hangs Luckes You" and "Beauty Is More Than Skin Deep."

Accompanying message concerning virtue and marriage, keeping the commandments, and the ingredients of beauty were read.

Elder Peterson closed his address with a quotation from Shakespeare "This above all to thine own self be true, and it will follow as night the day that thou canst not then be false to any man."

Keep Appointment Banyan Warns

John Marlow, Banyan Editor, has announced that if appointments are missed for a good reason they may be made up, but it is important for those who have missed appointments to make new ones.

The Brigham Young University Photo Studio is located at room 272 Eyring Science Center.

Entering Float? Submit Entry

All organizations submitting float entries in the Homecoming Parade must submit the following information in the Student Coordinator's office by Friday:

A sketch and full description of float, including dimensions, colors, and connection with the Homecoming theme. A short paragraph telling something about the history and purpose of your organization for use in a television script.

It is mandatory that organizations meet this deadline

The Provo City Police Department has established a limit of 14 feet, six inches as the maximum height of all floats.

Any organizations which have not yet obtained a copy of the rules for entering Homecoming floats may pick them up in the coordinator's office.

Major Dramatic Offering Set

"The Desperate Hours," a suspense drama and the first major production of the year, will be presented for the first time Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Smith Auditorium.

The story concerns a group of escaped criminals who hold a family as hostages in their own home until escape from the law is made possible. The play centers around the father's efforts to protect his family.

The cast is as follows: Richard Davis, Lyle Cooper, Neal Barth, Florence Rogers, Freddie Skousen, Stan Porter, Martha Adkins, Richard Hall, Rick Johnson, Makee Blaisdell, Charles Whatnott, Ross Broadbent and Judith Baxter.

According to Dr. Lael J. Woodbury of the speech department, tickets are still available. Students can pick up tickets by presenting activity cards at the Smith Information booth.

The director, Professor Morris Clinger, is assisted by Professor Robert Struthers, technical director, and George Turner who is in charge of lighting and painting

H'coming Vocal Groups Compete In Five Areas

HOMECOMING small ensemble competition will be staged Nov. 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse.

Trios and quartets will perform at this time. Vocal groups interested in competing may sign a list on the bulletin board in the basement of the Student Service Center. According to Howard Ellison, contest chairman, application deadline is Oct. 27.

VOCAL GROUPS from social units, geographical, service, and homecoming organizations are eligible for the men's and women's organization classes.

Small ensemble groups organized from churches, or other groups organized from members of the studentbody may be entered in men's or women's independent competition. Previous contest winners are not eligible to compete again.

Five classes of competition are: men's organizations, men's independents, women's organizations, women's independents and mixed. All groups must be amateur, composed entirely of Brigham Young University students, and accompaniment is limited to the piano or other single instrument unless done by members in the singing group, according to Ellison.

ELLISON added that any two songs may be selected. Song titles or themes do not have to be centered around Homecoming theme, "Remember When."

Announcement of contest winners will be made at the Fieldhouse Friday Nov. 2, where they will perform one number.

Party Held For Units

A get-acquainted party for all women's service units was held Monday evening sponsored by White Key, senior women's unit.

Participating in games and a variety program in the east gym of the South Fieldhouse were members of Cougarettes, Sponsors, Spurs, Y Calcaves, and White Key service clubs.

Mary Decker, Mesa, Ariz. was chairman of the event with Judy Stephan, Murray, supervising games; Barbara Grimshaw, Cedar City, invitational and Doris Humphries, Artesian, N. J., program.

AWS Trophy Set For Girls' Unit Rating Highest

Women's social units have already started to garner points for the Associated Women Students traveling trophy, according to Bonnie Berrett, AWS president.

The trophy-winning unit is chosen at the end of each school year by the number of points earned for performing services for the university.

These services include intramural sports, homecoming float, sponsoring mud dances, Song fest, holding parties at the Utah State Hospital, and presenting assemblies. Last year Val Norn social unit won the trophy.

2 Men Violate Honor Code

Monday evening two men were called before the Brigham Young University Honor Council for academic misconduct.

They have been reported to have cheated on three separate tests. The students were interviewed individually and could had the opportunity to report his feelings toward the case.

The council explained to the men the seriousness of the charge and told them that their betrayal of trust could mean expulsion. But, because of the effect that an expulsion would have on the students' future, the Honor Council recommended to the Faculty Committee on Honor that the two men be placed on a probationary status.

Their act at BYU will depend upon their conduct in the future. One more referral will mean immediate expulsion.

According to Howard Larson, Honor Council chairman, a counseling attitude and a spirit of brotherly love is present in every Honor Council meeting. This is necessary to give delinquent students every opportunity to reconcile themselves with the standards of the school, he said.

JUST DIAL A NUMBER

NEWSPAPER

Locically, a student newspaper belongs to the studenthody.

This means that each student at Brigham Young University has an interest in the Daily Universe, not only a critical interest, but a personal interest.

The scores of stories published in the Daily Universe each week do much to keep you informed of activities and happenings about the campus, the state, the nation and the world.

These articles do not find their way to the news columns of the paper by themselves.

Various methods are used to gather news —reporter inquiry, voluntary contributions and publicity handouts.

Reporters are assigned to cover events of which the Daily Universe is aware, and we have no trouble receiving publicity handouts from committees and organizations.

Area of most concern to the Daily Universe, however, is that which deals with the unexpected.

Publishing phone numbers of the editorial staff in the staff box is not for social convenience, but for use by those who know of an event or occurrence of unusual interest or importance which happens at odd hours of the night or day.

For complete, exacting coverage the Daily Universe needs the assistance of each member of the BYU community.

Important events or feature stories to the Daily Universe and to you cannot be measured by any known standards, but it gives you the satisfaction and knowledge you have contributed to the never-ending task of keeping the studenthody informed; it gives the reader a more complete picture of what is happening at his university and it helps the Daily Universe to more completely fill the role of student newspaper.

The phone numbers are for your use in telling us of the occurrence of a newsworthy event. Use them, night or day.

$41,000 FOR READERS

The Readers Digest is offering $41,000 worth of prizes for naming the 6 articles in the October issue which you think most readers will like best.

Most interesting feature about the contest, however, is the fact that some of the winners are awarded, the college which they attend receives a like su mlor the scholairship fund.

First prize is $5,000, with a $1,000 second prize and 10 $500 additional cash prizes.

Also added to the list are 100 $10 book credit prizes from the Best Readers.

Entries must be in the mail by October 25.

Such substantial contributions to the Brigham Young University scholarship fund would certainly be a welcome one, so why not give it a try. It doesn't cost anything but post card postage for your entry, and, who knows, you may pick up a little spending money.

Thanks, Frosh . . .

Dear Editor,

We want to tell the Freshman Class that they proved themselves to be loyal Cougars and good sports during the trials and tribulations of Freshman Week.

Thanks, freshmen, for wearing your beanies and colored socks, for participating in Freshman Week activities; and for demonstrating the spirit that is so characteristic of Brigham Young University.

We think you're great, and we're proud to have you share in our life on this campus.

You Senior Class Officers,

Scoundrels All? . . .

DEAR EDITOR.

I have been disturbed and chagrined by the attitude and expressed reaction of some members of the faculty and student body toward the Adlai-Estes button on my coat lapel. That there should exist widespread disagreement with this partisan position is no surprise but the curiosity, wonder, even disbelief which the button evokes come as a shock. Typical comments:

"You wear that as though you really meant it!"

"Aren't you at the wrong university?"

These responses are expressions of smug Republicanism that one cannot be a good Mormon, that one cannot be loyal to our Church leaders, and at the same time be a Democrat or be for Democratic candidates.

This intolerant position is simply not correct. Some members of the First Presidency and the Council of the Twelve are Democrats, have run as Democrats for public office, and/or contribute financially to the promotion of the Democratic party in Utah.

FURTHER, the Democratic candidate for U S. Representative in this district is a stake president, and the Democratic candidate for governor is a member of the priesthood.

TWICE, during the conference, these statements consistent with a more extensive statement by Joseph Fielding Smith, 1952, general conference, which I quote in extenso:

"Recently we heard that in one meeting, for example, it was stated authoritatively by somebody that two members of the General Authorities said that the General Authorities of the Church had held a meeting and had decided to favor one of the political parties over the other, here in this state, particularly.

"In Utah and surrounding states, contests for victory at the polls are being waged on national party lines. Regarding reports already received that the General Authorities of the Church have held a meeting and decided to wield their influence in favor of the candidates of one of these political parties, we will say:

"THIS REPORT is not true, and I take this opportunity here, publicly, to denounce such a report as without foundation in fact.

"In the Church, there are members who favor the Democratic party. There are other members who sincerely believe and advocate the principles and ideals of the Republican party. The First Presidency, the Council of Twelve, and other officers in the combined General Authorities of the Church, preside over members of both political parties.

"The President as President of the Church, is not favoring in this election either political party. The welfare of all members of the Church is equally considered by the President, his counselors and the General Authorities. Both political parties will be treated impartially." (123rd Semi-Annual Conference Report, Oct. 1952, p. 129.)

It should be noted that the same presidential candidates were running then as now.

I pray that in the irrational arena of politics we shall not question one another's loyalty to the Church, belief in which makes some of us of Democratic tendency, others Republican in predisposition

Kenneth R. Hardy

Mark of Maturity

Now at last you're 21—and old enough to vote. But growing up is just one essential—the other is, simply, thought. Don't be a don't-care voter. Think it through. Look over the candidates. Listen . . . read . . . argue. A thoughtful vote is a mark of maturity. Also a matter of pride!

Book Shows Public Relatio In War Not Wholly Hazardle

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK (INS)—People places . books. If you're interested in how wars ever manage to get reported, or linked about on radio, you'd best dip your bill into Col. Barney Oldfield's "Never a Shot in Anger," the story of one of the top public relations officers of World War II and his soft and hard times with the press. It's just out, published by Dodd, Sloan and Pearce.

Barney, named for the pioneer racing driver, was a movie press agent before being wed to uniform some years before a war which was to be almost tailor made for his industry, imagination, willingness to travel and ability to get along with some of the most wild divergent characters of our time.

BARNEY came closest to being killed" in his active war life when he reached for a handkerchief in his hip pocket one day in the presence of Stalin's trigger-happy secret police. It's in effect a book of scrapes, sometimes hilarious, and how they were solved.

To establish Berlin's famed Press Club, for example, Barney commandeered the mansion (with its beautiful grounds, tennis courts, etc.), turned on the plumbing to imitate leaks, broke all windows facing the street, took out the good furniture and replaced it with burned and battered stuff—and discovered 18 successive high ranking generals from commandeering the place as their headquarters.

BARNEY was the first newsman to go paratrooping—reunited Marlene Dietrich—prettiest beautiful USO girl at time, with her mother in Paris. He got love sick correspondents married, did such things arrange for a Rabbi chaplain celebrate the first Passover for V-E Day at the home of Josef Goebbels.

Good, lively, informative book—just like Barney.

On a lofter plane so speak, is "Tankers," by H. Mansfield, for the same publisher. It's the story of Bob incredible 40 years in the business, a span which, in man terms, reaches from Bonderhal man to Elvis Presley.

HERE IS related the pangs of the all-metal p the fretful birth of the strat bomber with Bill Mitche the gynecologist, the first specifications for the B-17 F the Flying Fortress of cold and weather, the B-29 w was built to fight Japan for off, the birth of the brilliant B-47, the "Tankers," the tanks, sleep and nuclear weapons power. The aviation buff will want to miss any of this.

And if you're curious what the atom holds in for you, read "And Wh Tomorrow" by George O. Jensen, former Washington correspondent of the Mer Commercial Appeal who wa through the war, and since the Manhattan A-bomb p and now is with AEC.

Cougars Hit Hardwoods In First Hoop Practice

COUGARS hit the hardwoods for the first time last night.

Head Coach Stan Watts got a good look at some 80 Brigham Young University basketball aspirants in the first full-fledged practice session of the season.

Despite being pleased with the turnout, Watts was reluctant in making any predictions on this year's team. "Since some of the boys look good out there, but we're hurting bad in several ways," he cautioned.

Last year's graduation and lack of experience on this year's team were singled out by Coach Watts as his major problems. "We're in the midst of a big rebuilding program," he asserted.

ALTHOUGH Watts could put a team of lettermen averaging 6-4 on the floor and has several men towering 6-5 or better, he said, "A small team is our biggest worry.

"We're pretty well set at forward and guard. We seem to have a lot of talent at these positions, but I'm afraid we'll be hard pressed for a center," he concluded.

Among those back from last year's squad include John Benson, 6-4 forward, Jack Anderson, 6-7 center; Russell Jones, 6-5 center; Lynn Rowe, 6-4 forward and guards Tom Stenke and Harry Anderson.

TO BOLSTER this nucleus, Watts has four junior college transfers, five returned missionaries and five discharged servicemen as well as six men up from the freshman team

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young mathematician helps pace engineering advances

Recently General Electric developed a compact, new motor for industrial use. But before the motor could be put into automatic production, one difficulty remained: to design a protective end shield that would confine any possible explosion to the motor itself.

The man who solved the tough mathematical problem involved is R. A. "Pete" Powell — a mathematical analyst whose job is to assist other engineers in math problems which arise in any number of different projects.

Powell's Work Is Varied and Important

Because he is not tied down to any one project, Powell seldom has two similar assignments. Taking established engineering and mathematical principles, some of them extremely complicated, Powell applies them to advanced engineering problems. In doing this, Pete is able to make such calculations as the distortion of a small part of a jet engine caused by vibrations, the deflection occurring in a turbine part when it runs at operational speeds, or the forces exerted upon a rotating shaft by lubricants.

27,000 College Graduates at General Electric

When "Pete" Powell came to General Electric in 1953, he already knew the kind of work he wanted to do. Like each of our 27,000 college-graduate employees, he is being given the chance to grow and realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed this: Whenever fresh young minds are given freedom to make progress, everybody benefits — the individual, the Company, and the country.

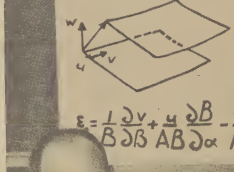
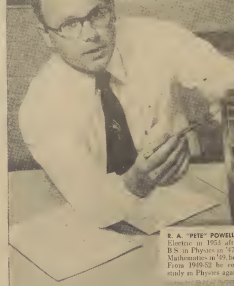
$$\varepsilon_1 = \frac{1}{A}\frac{\partial u}{\partial \alpha} + \frac{v}{AB}\frac{\partial A}{\partial \beta} - \frac{w}{R_1}$$



$$\varepsilon = \frac{1}{B}\frac{\partial v}{\partial \beta} + \frac{u}{AB}\frac{\partial B}{\partial \alpha} - \frac{w}{R_2}$$



R. A. "PETE" POWELL joined General Electric in 1953 after receiving his B.S. in Physics in '47 and his M.S. in Mathematics in '49, both from Purdue. From 1949-52 he completed further study in Physics again at Purdue.
